

Many problems we encounter in our life are caused by imbalance of different elements of our being, such as water, fire, and so forth. Tibetan Buddhists use sophisticated techniques aimed at bringing those elements into balance, such as wearing protection wheel amulets, and so forth. Khenpo Ngawang Dorjee personally makes and consecrates such protection amulets that help to increase personal health, prosperity, and so forth. For example, if someone encounters business problems, this might be a result of degeneration of a particular constituent of our being known as “power” (Tib. wangthang). Using an amulet that helps to restore that power will by extension result in improvement of one's business.
